Borehole Drilling

VYN Global Service Limited uses the biggest rotary drilling machine (capable to drill up to 1500 meters) for deep well drilling. The direct rotary drilling method enables us to increase drilling speeds to reach greater depths in most formations. The borehole is drilled by a rotating bit and the waste material is removed by the special mud circulation system that also penetrates the formation to maintain the well wall non permeability. The drilling bit is attached to the lower end of the string of the drill pipe, which transmits the rotating action from the rig to the bit.

In the rotary system, drilling mud is pumped down through the drill pipe and out through the ports or jets in the bit; carrying the waste material in suspension to the surface. At the surface, the mud is channeled into a setting pit or pits where most of the waste material is sieved.

The sieved clean mud is sucked up by the pump at the far end of pit or from the second pit and re-circulated into the system.

The components of the rotary drilling machines are designed to serve two functions simultaneously; operation of the bit and continuous circulation of the drilling mud. Both are indispensable in cutting in maintaining the borehole.
